KUFFINU

An enchanted small dammuso surrounded by an impressive Mediterranean park

This enchanted little dammuso is part of a big and extremely well-cared for property on the Western side of the island and surrounded by a gorgeous park featuring palm and olive trees, vineyards, caper fields and many other Mediterranean plants whose flowering branches lend their cool shade to the various terraces. The eye, not hindered by any other buildings in the area, sweeps over Pantellerias lush countryside before finally meeting the African sea and the sunset, and the silence of nature uncontaminated will be your companion in the long summer evenings.

of the general road; the house itself is surrounded by a big wooded park planted with olive, pine and palm trees as well as vines. The large, cane-covered terrace is furnished with comfortable deck chairs and offers a view of the sea and the sunset; in the foreground the eye rests on the lush palm garden just in front of the house. The innermost corner of the terrace houses a barbecue, table and chairs where to enjoy dinner and the cool breeze emanating from the trees in the evening. The entrance door opens directly into the double bedroom with wall wardrobe; just around the corner is the shower bathroom. Everything is very sober and extremely well-cared for, with simple furniture and walls and floors done in smooth concrete, in perfect keeping with the overall impression of the property. A big open arch leads into the well-appointed kitchen whose ample work spaces are done in coloured tiles; the window overlooks the terrace and the landscape beyond.The real protagonist of this dammuso, however, is the large and generous park with its various trees and plants which allows for maximum privacy, in fact from here no other building is visible, a rare feat even here on the remote island of Pantelleria.
The surrounding areaPractically in front of the house ist the Salto della Vecchia cliffside, a vantage point which offers a truly breathtaking view on the coast below and can be reached only on foot from the geeneral road.Not very distant is the picturesque little port of Scauri where boats and rubber dinghies can be rented; there is also a diving center. Just a few metres from that is the beautiful la Vela bay with a small slipway for boats and smooth rocks extending into the water which is here shallow and thus a good place for children and swimmers with little experience. The tiny village of Scauri offers restaurants, pubs, daily papers, a tobacconist and a small but rather well-stocked supermarket.
